WOODS FIRES BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL

67 Die In Huge Explosion As Ice Pageant Ends

By BOYD GILL
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A shattering explosion, apparently caused by ignition of compressed gas, blasted the Indiana Coliseum at the climax of a gay Halloween ice pageant Thursday night. Authorities today counted 67 persons dead and 331 injured.

Staters were whirling into the grand finale of the opening night performance of "Holiday on Ice" when the explosions tore through the concrete floor beneath a section of $3.30-a-ticket box seats—the finest night at the ice show.

Bodies were hurled 40 and 50 feet through the air onto the ice where chorus girls had pirouetted a moment before. Mink stoles lay among torn bodies, crumpled popcorn boxes and empty beer containers. In point of numbers killed it was the greatest tragedy in Indianapolis history.

Saddens Entire State

Gov. Matthew Welsh and Coroner Dennis Nicholas promised an unstinting investigation until the cause of the blast is discovered. Welsh called it "a great tragedy" which "saddened the entire state."

Investigators indicated they already had plenty of clues. The box seats, many of them occupied by prominent Indianapolis area residents, were directly above the concession area which is located in the basement of the barn-like state fair coliseum. At least one coliseum worker said he saw a gas tank topple over there moments before the blast. Cordon of police guarded other gas tanks and warned spectators to stay away after the disaster.

To the stunned city of Indianapolis, the reasons why seem secondary for the moment.

The shocking and most important fact was a sheet of ice scarred with dead-mothers, fathers, a few children; a holiday Halloween night which became a real nightmare while a band played jazztime music; the double row of covered bodies laid out in the coliseum under the merry eye of a pastboard chorus girl which had served as a prop for the show.

Survivors Tell Story

Those who lived through it told the story: Policeman Jack Ohrburg: "It's the first time I've ever had a year-old girl die in my arms crying 'Daddy, daddy.'"

Richard Crowell, 20, college student, who dragged his girl friend from the rubble and struggled towards safety: "There was a popcorn concession stand beneath us, all over us. I carried Karol, I...

He is president of the Library Club and is the winner of one of the Murray Woman's Club's scholarships—presented last week for further study on the Clarinet. He has played the instrument for two years and has had five years of piano. He began playing the Kinsman electric organ last summer and is self taught.

Debate Is Held At College On Current Races

County Judge Robert O. Miller of Murray and William Howerton, Paducah attorney, were the participants in a debate last night at the International Relations Club of Murray State College.

Judge Miller spoke for the Democratic party and Howerton for the Republican party.

Professor Auburn Wells acted as moderator for the debate. Following the debate, questions were asked from the floor. The meeting was attended by members of the IRO club and several townspeople.

Howerton, the first speaker, declared rule by executive order, saying that an order calling for aid to one group, could just as well be followed by an order depriving them of privileges. This should be handled through the legislature, the duly elected representatives of the people, he said.

Methodist Men Hold Meeting On Monday

The Methodist Men of the Bethel, Brooks Chapel, and Independence Circuit met at the parsonage in Alto Monday night, October 26.

William A. Jones, president, called the meeting to order. The devotion was given by the pastor, Rev. Layne Shanklin.

The visiting speaker of the evening, Robert Brown of Murray First Methodist Church, gave an interesting lecture on the early history of Calloway County. Along with the early history he made a comparison of the early cropping of Calloway County as compared with today showing early uses and abuses of the soil. Slides were shown of the watershed area of Calloway with the many soil improvements that are taking place. Mr. Brown pointed out that the soil was our heritage to be passed on to succeeding generations in better fertility than we received it. He explained how the soil related to our churches, schools, and general way of life.

Five Join Rotary Club

Several persons were initiated into Rotary yesterday by the Murray Rotary Club. New Rotarians are John Trotter, Vernon Brown and Ray Parmalee. New additions to the club from other clubs are Rev. Loyd Ramer and Leonard Arnn.

The initiation ceremony was in charge of Henry McKenzie assisted by Harry Fenton and Nat Ryan Hughes.

Fenton spoke of the background of Rotary and some of its history. He related that today Rotary is in 128 countries, with 12,000 clubs and over 500,000 members.

Hughes told the new Rotarians that service is the basis of Rotary, and that becoming a Rotarian presented new avenues of service to the individual.

Rev. McKenzie concluded the program by giving some areas where Rotary could be of assistance.

He commented that the Murray Rotary Club is in its 40th year and that this coincided with the 49th year of Murray State College also.

Leslie Kesler of Paducah and Dr. A. D. Butterworth were visiting Rotarians.

Over 500 Acres Burned; Many Volunteers Aid In Fire Fight

Approximately 500 acres burned yesterday in the Ledbetter Creek area of Kentucky Lake yesterday threatened at least two homes. Starting about noon yesterday from an unknown cause, the blaze was finally brought under control about 6:30 last night. The rainfall during the night finished the work done by many Forestry personnel and volunteers.

Sheriff Woodrow Rickman, who was on the scene for some time, said the mobile Forestry equipment was on hand and aided greatly in quelling the blaze which swept through tangle underbrush and some timber.

The fire was located between the Ledbetter Creek road and the gravel road just west of the turnoff, on the south side of Highway 94. Reports originally were that the blaze was on the north side of the highway, closer to Highway 68.

A large group of volunteers arrived on the scene, composed of college students, the Murray Rescue Squad, the Benton Emergency Unit, and residents of the area.

Fire Guard Wade Roberts suffered a heart attack during the fire fighting and was rushed to the Murray Hospital by State Patrolman Ira Crawford. He is listed as in serious condition at this time.

Crawford said that he saw Roberts in difficulty and got him to the hospital as quickly as possible.

Sheriff Rickman said that he wished to extend his personal thanks to the college students who were of great help.

Last night another large fire broke out on the J. T. Taylor farm located between the Lynn Grove and Coldwater highways. About fifty acres were burned in this fire and it was thought that all buildings on the farm would burn at one time, however they were saved.

Here again volunteers composed of college students, townspeople and residents of the area worked together to quell the blaze.

At the time of these fires, the

Kiwanis Club Hears Young Paducah Men

The Murray Kiwanis club last night heard talks by members of the Tighman High School Key Club, Mark Ward, president of the Tighman Club and Lt. Governor of Division one of the Kentucky-Tennessee Key Clubs International, conducted a program of information on the activities and purposes of the Key Clubs which are sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs of the various cities.

Mike Pittman spoke on the activities of the Key Clubs emphasizing that the clubs are not fraternal organizations but have as their purpose, service to the student body, the schools and the communities.

Richard Burill outlined the history of the Key Clubs which were originally formed in 1925 in California. In 1939 clubs were formed in Florida and the southeastern states. In 1946 international by-laws were adopted.

While Division One is the most active in Kentucky and has a greater number of clubs the state ranks rather low in the national picture. Richard outlined the process of organizing a club, stating that first a local Kiwanis Club must approach the school authorities who in turn will select a student of outstanding leadership to promote the work among the student body. Care is taken in selecting prospective members but the only requirement is a good scholastic standing and character.

The meeting was attended by Burton Jeffery, Supt. of Calloway County Schools, William M. Lee, Principal of Calloway County High School, David Payne, representing Murray College High, and Fred Schultz, Supt. of the Murray City Schools.

Other visitors were Norm Miller of the Paducah Downtown Kiwanis Club who sponsored the Tighman Club, Bob Smith of the Evansville Kiwanis Club and Dick Maddox former Key Club member from Madisonville.

The Murray Kiwanis club will hold its fall donut sale next Thursday, Nov. 7, the proceeds of this sale going to the club's fund for underprivileged children.

Changes Made In Vaccination Program

Dr. A. M. Kirkpatrick, State veterinarian has pointed out the following changes in the Calf Hood Vaccination Program.

The increased demand by farmers for vaccination against Brucellosis has caused a change in the program.

Dates are being set up in each county in the state for a four week period every four months at which time the vaccination will be free to the owners. At other times the owner must pay for it. The dates for Calloway County have been set as Nov. 1 through Nov. 20.

Owners desiring the vaccination for calves 4 through 8 months of age should contact their local veterinarian, giving their own name, address, farm location, number and age of the calves, and give the name of the veterinarian they desire to do the work. No request will be taken after the above dates.

Letter to the Editor

I and thousands of other Democrats in Kentucky, will go to the polls on November 5th, and vote the Republican ticket, many of us for the first time in our lives. I would like to state some of the reasons for this.

Thousands of Americans have died fighting for the freedom of this country, and this includes religious freedom. Yet today, our children cannot say a prayer in school because it is called unconstitutional under the Democratic administration. What will they tell us is unconstitutional tomorrow? That we cannot sing in our churches because it annoys another atheist?

Our taxes are higher than they have ever been and it is a burden for some of us to even have the necessities for existence. Yet our state is over $600 million in debt, and we rank near the bottom in almost everything. Still some people who claim to be our Democratic leaders tell us to vote for a continuation of this. I think we are too intelligent today and have the courage to vote for what we feel is best for us and our state, rather than for what the political bosses place on the Democratic ticket.

The most important reason for voting the Republican ticket, to me, is that Louie B. Nunn has promised that the Kennedy's will not dictate policies in the governing of the state of Kentucky; and that no one will be persecuted for praying any time, any place he chooses, if he is elected. Mr. Nunn's record, both personal and political, is spotless, and we have no cause to doubt his promises.

I feel that it is time for all Christian-minded Americans to place their religion and their country's welfare first, forget their politics and go to the polls November 5, to vote for a clean-up of the fifth and corruption in our State Government. I am sure that there are thousands of fellow Democrats of the same opinion—that we need a change to good, honest, economical government.

JUMPS RED SHIP — Evdicia Merkusheva, 43, looks a bit tense as she faces reporters in Hamburg, West Germany, to tell about escaping from a Soviet ship. She was a waitress on the ship, and got permission to go for a walk when the ship docked in Hamburg. An electrical engineer was assigned to go with her to make certain she returned. She entered a ladies' room and fled through a rear door.

Herbie Phelps Seeks To Set New Record

by United Press International

Herbie Phelps' bid to set a new state high school scoring record and undefeated Lexington Lafayette's intra-city clash with once-beaten Henry Clay highlight the weekend football activity in the commonwealth.

Lafayette, led by halfback Tommy Bog, takes a 9-0 record into its showdown Saturday with local rival, Henry Clay, which is still very much in the running for the Class AA Region II championship, too, with an 8-1 record. Bog is averaging nine yards a carry and is the leading scorer in Fayette County with 102 points.

Compared with Phelps' 282 points, however, Bog's total seems rather small.

Hustling Herbie needs only 11 points to surpass the all-time state prep record he set last season. Those points could come this Saturday when the young phenom leads his Old Kentucky Home teammates against Bardonia in another intra-city rivalry.

Like Lafayette, Old Kentucky Home has gone without loss or tie in nine games. The commonwealth now has only nine unbeaten, untied eleven.

Other teams in the elite class are Caldwell County (9-0), Louisville Wagner (8-0), Owensboro (8-0), Boyle County (7-0), Mount Vernon (7-0), Elizabethtown (7-0), and Louisville Male (6-0). Mount Vernon is the only team sure of an undefeated season, having completed its campaign.

Paris has not been beaten this season, but has one tie along with eight victories.

A major game in eastern Kentucky will send Harlan's Green Dragons to Lynch in an effort to wrest away from the Bulldogs the championship of the 2nd District of Class A's Region IV, which they have held ever since the division was established.

London, winner of the 1st District title, meets Lily this weekend, then rests a week before tackling the Harlan-Lynch survivor for the regional title.

The Cavaliers of Jenkins, who already have sewed up the title in the 2nd District of Class AA's Region IV, can add the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference title to their honors by beating Pikeville Saturday.

Fort Thomas Highlands, which already has won the Class AA Region II crown to all intents and purposes, can make it official by whipping Campbell County Friday night — a strong likelihood, since the Bluebirds have a 29-game winning streak going in regional play.

FIVE DAY FORECAST

By United Press International

Precipitation will be light averaging one-tenth inch or less. Chance of scattered showers nearly next week.

Kentucky mean temperatures average 50, Louisville 60 and 38.

ment. We need to prove that we merit the sacrifices of soldiers — that they did not fight and even die in vain — that our religious freedom, the future of our children, and our country come first with us, too.

My personal opinion of Mr. Breathitt is that he appears to be a man who will promise anything and has a solution for nothing. We all know that during the Primary in every speech that Mr. Breathitt delivered, he was challenging Mr. Chandler to debate with him. Now the shoe seems to be on the other foot. It appears that Mr. Breathitt is reluctant to debate with Mr. Nunn, and after just one debate, we can see why.

It appears that Mr. Breathitt and his organization will do anything for a vote — they are becoming very desperate. They even placed an article in newspapers which indicated that if Mr. Nunn were elected, he would cut the old-age assistance check. Any normally intelligent person would know better than that. The real truth of the matter, and the serious part is that Mr. Breathitt has obligated himself to continue the Combs administration policies. Which many of us certainly do not like.

Very truly yours,
A DEMOCRAT FOR NUNN AND LAWRENCE

KENNEDY WEEKEND HOME—This is that newly-finished "weekend home" of President Kennedy and his family in Atoka, Va. The helicopter lands and takes off on the lawn. The photo was made with a long lens from a public road.

School Of New Hope PTA Meets

Tuesday Night October 22 the PTA of the School of New Hope met at the school. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Paul Grogan. Twelve members and two visitors were present.

Maurice Ryan was introduced by John L. Williams. He was presented as a member of City School Board, to answer informal questions from the floor in regard to the school being added into the city school system.

A round table discussion followed. Revealing that three percent of the population were mentally retarded. That no family, race, creed or financial status was immune. This could be the problem of any parent. If this problem were yours then it would be of your child among those neglected in our educational department.

Three definite needs were brought to light. First for a building approved by state and teachers to teach this special school. Equipped to train the trainable, teach the teachable, educate the educable.

Second the need for more teachers trained to teach this group. Stressing the number of unused scholarships available to those interested in this type of work.

Third the need to educate the John Public to the fact the mental retardation isn't the disgrace one thought. The neglecting to do all in our power to do something about it was the disgrace of the lazy.

The parents didn't come to this meeting empty handed. A lot for the building has been purchased. Cash funds in four figure group is available. The will and determination to see the neglected among those with educational facilities.

To quote one member: "we have bought and sold anything that could be bought and sold. And "Beggod". We'll continue to do so until our neglected have equal rights, from the educational department."

To quote another: "If the public could only know about this thing they would help us out of the gratefulness of their hearts to God, to make your problem known in this county is to have the willing help of the general public."

"Mr. Ryan made it clear to the parents that until facilities were available to teach this group from five to twenty-one" we did not have full educational benefits for all our

Leading Shoemakers Have Decried End Of High Heels

VIGEVANO, Italy (UPI) — The world's leading shoemakers have decried the end of high heels for women — at least for the coming year.

Heels on the shoes shown at the 27th International Shoe Salon did not exceed two and a half inches, and they had wider bases than usual.

Shoes for evening wear followed slim, graceful lines, but unlike those of recent years were rounded on the toes. Women's shoes also featured large openings on the tops and sides.

Colors for 1964 spring and summer were oyster, chalk and ivory.

About 1,500 shoemakers from 12 nations displayed their products at the show, one of the most important in the world.

Vigevano is the shoe capital of Italy, and soon a new building will rise here to house future exhibitions.

In the past 12 years, Italy has almost tripled its shoe production, from 30 million pairs in 1950 to 88 million last year. The estimate for 1963 is 92 million and for 1964, 96 million.

There are more than 63,000 firms that operate in this field in Italy and they employ 145,000 persons. Exports for 1963 are expected to surpass $6 billion.

Household Hints

For a tasty bedtime treat, top a round shredded wheat biscuit with one cup milk and mix with one tablespoon orange marmalade.

When hubby goes hunting be sure his clothing is safety bright. Blaze orange heads the safe color list.

Soggy biscuits are the result of too much liquid, too little fat, or baking at too low an oven temperature.

Seedless grapes are ideal for all kinds of salads, desserts, pies, and poultry stuffings.

Keep wigs on wig blocks to preserve shape.

Soaking is the secret of successfully washing woolens automatically. Experts recommend gentle agitation in cold water for one minute, then an eight-minute soak followed by another one-minute agitation.

"City Under The Ice": The Story of Canap Century by Charles Michael Daugherty.

A whole community, buried beneath the Greenland icecap and powered completely by a nuclear reactor—this is Canap Century, built by the U. S. Army Polar Research and Development Center to serve as a scientific outpost for the study of environmental effects on people and on objects. This is an authorized account of a pioneering venture on the cold frontier of science.

"Morte D'Urban" By J. F. Powers. The story of Father Urban, a priest in the impoverished Order of St. Clement, and his tribulations in dealing with a rich, but questionable benefactor of the Order. Father Urban has great success in guiding the Order to flourishing prosperity, but in a series of small decisions favoring principle over popularity, he loses his benefactors, and his standing.

"Fanny And The Regent of Siam" by R. J. Minney. In the same exotic setting, but a generation later than the famous Anna and The King Of Siam, this is the story of a love that survived despite bitter opposition and tragic hardships inflicted by a venal ruler. Based on diaries, letters, and the splendor of the royal palace, the stately British Consulate, and elegant parties and balls.

"The Restless Land" by John H. Culpe. The life of northwest Texas in the 1870's, as seen by a boy growing up on a ranch, going on a cattle drive, fighting off Indian raids, enjoying the social life of the settlement, riding off alone to rescue his childhood sweetheart who has been captured by a Comanche chief. An authentic picture of the time and the region.

"By The King's Command" by Shirley Seifert. In 1773, by royal command, the entire population of a Spanish colony in East Texas was ordered to move to the new capital at San Antonio, 700 miles away. This is the story of the townspeople on their long and hazardous journey, an adventure in the wilderness, based on old journals and reports.

Fashionettes

by United Press International
For the newly fashion-important floor-length evening ensemble, the proper glove is the high-rising 16-buttoner in shiny black or white kid. The best design: one that hand-bolsters inside the wrist, permitting the hand of the glove to be removed while the wearer is eating or drinking.

The newest hats feature fur of every kind. The cast of skins from the jungle includes: tall white robes made of mink, civet cat, antelope, leopard. For the dandy who cannot make up her mind there are three-toned mink-white, tormaline and ranch.

A superb shoe for dressy day-time occasions is of taupe calf-skin with a medium-high slender heel. A typical touch: delicate tear-drop cut-outs on the sides and piped all about with black patent leather.

There's a nautical touch to sportswear for autumn. Straight from the salt air and summer sports is the patching shirt with drawstring bottom. Another silhouette that apes costumes of those at sea: the sailor's pea jacket.

It's check and double-check for the little miss who wants fashion in a jumper. One good-looking version is of black, white and red checks with straight pleats falling from a bias yoke.

LIKE MONROE?—They're going to make a movie modeled on the career of Marilyn Monroe in Tokyo, and Kumiko Oikawa, 20, won the title, "A Woman Like Monroe," so she'll star. Here she poses in front of a life-size photo of the late star. Draw your own conclusions. The film's title, "Monro-no Yona Onna." Kumiko's win also collected a new car and a million yen for her.

Dear Abby . . .

BACHELOR'S YARD FACES SUBMERSION

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a happy bachelor and here is my problem. Two neighbors, one right next door to me on my left, and the other right next door to me on my right, are divorcees. They both tell me their troubles and cry over both fences whenever they catch me outside. Now my back yard is flooded with their tears and my grass is drowning. How can I keep these two husband-losers from running my yard?

HAPPY BACHELOR

DEAR HAPPY: Grow rich.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister who isn't the smartest person in the world, but I love her. She tells me her troubles and cries on my shoulder. She has a husband, but he's no help. (He cries on his mother's). Well, my sis called me at 4:15 this morning and scared my husband out of his wits. She wanted to know if she should call the police to look for her 18-year old daughter who went out on a date and wasn't home yet. She was hysterical, Abby. I'll admit she's called at odd hours for reasons like there was a mouse in her bedroom, she is terrified of thunder storms, etc. But this time she really needed me, and my husband refused to drive me over there to calm her down. (I don't drive.) He said if anything like that ever happens again, I can go live with my sister. Who was unreasonable? Him or me?

BIG SISTER

DEAR SIS: I can't blame your husband for being fed up with your sister's hysteria. Tell sis to lay off the nocturnal S.O.S.'s, or you will lose your happy home.

DEAR ABBY: I have the perfect solution for the busy housewife who was embarrassed by the thoughtless person who just happened to be in the neighborhood so she thought she'd drop in and pay a social call. Bake a pie or something and take it over to her house. But don't give her any notice. Just ring her bell like she rang yours, and see how SHE likes it.

AA Meeting To Be Held On November 15

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — In keeping with the fellowship tradition found in Alcoholics Anonymous, hundreds of recovered alcoholics — men and women from every walk of life — will gather in Bloomington Nov. 15-17 for the 3rd Annual Tri-State Convention.

The purpose of the AA Tri-State Convention, originally conceived and held in Evansville in 1961, is to bring the convention to the people remotely situated from large metropolitan areas. Last year some 200 men and women, and their families, attended the 2nd Annual Convention in Owensboro, Ky.

Center of activity for this year's convention will be the Biddle Convention Center on the Indiana University campus. Out-of-town guests desiring overnight accommodations should write Box 1265 before Nov. 5 in order to assure reservations in the Memorial Union Building.

Included in the registration fee will be the AA-Alanor luncheon, Saturday night dinner-dance and Sunday morning breakfast. AA meetings will be held continuously during the three day convention, with speakers coming from New York, Pennsylvania, Georgia and Kentucky.

Hosting the convention will be the AA groups of Bloomington and Bedford.

Although the southern tri-state area includes parts of Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky, reservations for the convention, open to alcoholics from any section of the country, have already been received as far away as Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

The Sunday afternoon meeting that closes the convention which is the custom in Alcoholics Anonymous, is open to the public and high school groups who wish to attend.

Again we are very grateful to everyone.

CHAPTER 24
JERRY Callahan took time to sign a cigarette, then climbed back into the cab and began obeying the tractor into position for attaching the trailer.

Apparently the load was all aboard, for the man who had been shooting merchandise into the truck now yelled something at the man inside, and began pulling the conveyor into the clear.

He had been backing it off as the truck filled, but there was still a good five feet of it extending into the truck. This struck me as odd, since it would cost almost as much to transport that unoccupied space as for an equivalent volume of payload.

The same thought must have occurred to the man who had been inside the trailer, for he appeared to be arguing about it with Saunders, pointing toward the truck and waving his arms.

Saunders said something I couldn't make out; the man shrugged, picked up a lunch pail which was sitting next to the wall, and went into the warehouse. Moments later, a window in the office was lighted up.

The man who had been operating the forklift came onto the platform carrying his own lunch bucket. He and the third one also went into the warehouse, leaving only Saunders and the truck driver.

Saunders scowled after them a moment, muttered a curse which I could hear all the way across the street, and slammed the door of the trailer. He said something to Callahan which made the man grin. Immediately afterward, Callahan pulled the rig into the street and headed north at a conservative speed.

There seemed to be slight chance of learning anything more by hanging around where I was. Besides, I was curious about that unfiled portion of the truck. I decided to trail along and see what happened.

The half dozen red lights on the back of the trailer were still in sight after I reached my car and pulled out behind it. Before it had gone half a dozen blocks I was close enough to read the license number.

Soon after we crossed K Street it became apparent that Callahan was aware that someone was following him. He slowed to about ten miles an hour as if to let me pass, then speeded up again when I held my position.

To throw him off, I turned left, then right at the next corner, so as to parallel his route. By timing it carefully, I was able to get a glimpse of the truck as it passed each intersection. One thing about following a big diesel, there's no danger of its ducking into some driveway or private garage.

Just when I was telling myself this, it failed to show at a corner on schedule. I gave it a few seconds, then drove back to the street it was following. To my great relief, it was parked in the middle of the block, close to a tavern. The headlights were turned off, but its running lights still shone.

As I drove through the intersection, Callahan got out of the cab and entered the tavern. I carried the block and parked, expecting him to come out shortly. He didn't, and after about ten minutes I began to wonder what was up.

I left my car and went to the truck. The back door was fastened with a heavy padlock, and a look into the cab confirmed my impression that it was unoccupied. I crossed over to the tavern and peered through one of its two small windows.

THERE was no sign of Jerry Callahan. In fact the only person in sight was a bartender, slouched on the back stool. I gathered my courage and went in, hoping that if Callahan proved to be there he wouldn't recognize me.

The bartender got up reluctantly and moved behind the bar.

"What'll it be, pardner?" To provide myself with an excuse for entering, I ordered a whisky sour. While he was fixing it, I took a good look around the room. The only possibility of a hiding place was a closed door at the back of the room.

"Here you are, pardner," the bartender said, with unconcerning friendliness. "That'll be fifty cents."

I laid a half dollar on the counter and began sipping at my drink. When several minutes had passed with no sign of Callahan, I nodded toward the back.

"Is there a washroom back there?"

"Sure. Help yourself." The bartender picked up a damp cloth and began wiping the bar.

Since I had asked it would look funny if I didn't do something about it. I left my drink on the bar and crossed to the back door.

Beyond it was a room cluttered with full and empty liquor cases and odds and ends. There were two doors side by side, one with the word "Ladies," the other "Gents." I tapped lightly on the latter, received no response, and opened it, almost expecting to find Callahan inside.

To my mingled relief and disappointment, the little room was empty. I stepped inside, closed the door, and turned on the faucet over a dirty washbasin. I waited for what seemed a minute, in case the bartender was listening. When I judged he wouldn't think I had been in there, I made a dash for the door, unlocked it, and opened the door.

That is, I tried to open it. At first I thought it was just stuck, but when I put more weight on it, it still didn't budge. From somewhere in the distance came the roar of a diesel.

I kicked and banged on the door, and was rewarded by the sound of activity outside. The bartender called crossly, "Take it easy, pardner. That door ain't made of iron."

"Well open it up!" I yelled. "I'm locked in."

For a minute there was silence, then the sound of hammering. After a bit the door came loose at its hinge edge, and I saw the bartender with a hammer in his hand.

"Now if that ain't the damndest thing," he muttered. "Three years I've been working in this point, and this is the first time..."

I didn't hear the rest of it, for I was running toward the street. When I got there, however, there was no sign of the truck. Even the sound of its exhaust was no longer audible.

After a fruitless hour trying to track up the trail, I gave up and headed for the boardinghouse.

IT WAS well past noon when I woke up to the sound of Mrs. Ferris calling my name, saying that someone wanted to see me. I grabbed a robe and padded downstairs, hoping it would be Mr. Holley telling me to come back to work.

If he didn't, I'd have to write the bank in Omaha to transfer some money from my savings account.

The voice wasn't Holley's. A heavy accent made some of the words hard to understand, but the meaning was clear enough. If I didn't want to end up in a cuvert, I had better get out of town.

A message like this is a little unnerving. All I could think of to say was, "Who is this?"

"A friend of Nifty Noriega's. It doesn't matter who I am, just get the hell out of town while you're able." There was a click in my ear as the connection was broken.

I had been half asleep a few minutes before, but I didn't feel sleepy any longer. To put it plainly, I was scared. It had been bad enough when Mona Saunders' two goons had come at me in the back room of the poolhall, but at least I had known what I was up against. Now I was faced with the unknown, which is twice as terrifying. That voice might belong to anyone, even someone I knew. Just at the last, whoever it was had forgotten the accent.

"Whatever this is all about, it won't wait for me. I'm going myself killed." Martin is warned. Continue the story Monday.

Insurance Is One Feature Of Wheat Deal

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (AP) — One aspect of any possible wheat deal with Russia to be watched with extreme interest by financial circles will be the arrangements worked out to insure cargoes of grain going overseas.

As a four-man Soviet trade delegation came into Washington to open negotiations for purchase of up to 250 million bushels of wheat, this was only one aspect of the many involved in any presumable agreement, which remain to be worked out.

No License Yet

Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Commerce, disclosed yesterday that the government had not yet made ready to approve an export license for shipping wheat to the Soviet bloc. He said the department had received three or four applications from potential exporters, but none seemed to answer requirements. Insurance men have said that, like most other features of any potential trade with the Soviet bloc, their course will have to be determined by what the government decides shall be the terms of shipment and of payment. The government has stipulated that the wheat, and possibly other agricultural commodities, should be shipped in American flag vessels wherever possible.

Peter E. Vanderbeck, manager of the Foreign Credit Insurance Association, said here that whether the FCIA would participate "pretty much depends on the government decision."

The FCIA began operations Feb. 5, 1962, and Vanderbeck said it since has steadily expanded. It was established on request by the Export-Import Bank of Washington to provide participation by the insurance industry with the bank in providing export credit insurance for U. S. exporters. It started out with an impressive list, which since has grown, of major insurance company participants.

Time Limits

Vanderbeck noted that, as one feature, the FCIA insured only those exports for which payment is expected within a six-month's limit. "There have been some reports — and these were reports only — that the recipients of the grain might be given as much as 18 months to pay," Vanderbeck said, "and this of course, under our policies, would not make the USSR an eligible buyer."

"But when details are worked out in Washington," he continued, "we will of course discuss the insurance matter with them, with the idea we might be able to go along with whatever is decided."

DEER TAGGED

FRANKFORT, Ky. (Special) — A total of 72 deer on Mammoth Cave National park were trapped and tagged with plastic neck tags during a one-month period beginning on September 15, the Department announces. Those neckbands are designed to trace the movements of deer in the area and hunters are asked to report the kill of such deer, off the park area, during the upcoming deer season, to the Department or to conservation officers. One load of trapped deer has been released in Pike county in recent weeks.

FARM BUREAU in Action!

Kentucky Farm Bureau Fed.

The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation will hold its 44th annual convention November 10-13 at the Kentucky Hotel in Louisville. Members of the organization have been making plans for the event for the past two months.

It all starts with community and county policy development meetings. Members gather around tables in their homes and in community and county meetings and decide on recommendations concerning county, state and national issues prior to the convention.

The county Farm Bureaus decide on local policy and make recommendations to the state FB Resolutions Committee on state and national matters. The state Resolutions Committee is at work this week deciding on resolutions which will be presented to the delegate body at the convention for approval or disapproval. This is what is known in FB as the policy development process. Of course, recommendations on national issues are forwarded to the American Farm Bureau and the delegate body at the national convention in December in Chicago will decide national policy.

Several well-known speakers will address the state convention. Among them are the Governor-elect or his representative; Jack Welch, president, KPB; and Allan Kline, past president, American Farm Bureau Federation. They will speak on Monday morning. Tuesday's speakers include John W. Koon, executive secretary, KPB; Henry Ward, commissioner, Department of Highways; Marvin Briggs, former manager, Indiana FB Co-op Association; and Dr. John Oswald, president, University of Kentucky.

Other highlights include the FB talent contest Sunday. The FB women's luncheon, and the FB young people's luncheon, commodity conferences, a ladies' tea, the king and queen contest and the talk meet contest are set for Monday. Tuesday, FB will present county recognition awards, the communications awards and the distinguished service awards. The business session will be held Wednesday morning.

Registration begins at 3 p. m. (EST) Sunday, with the vesper serve at 4 p. m.
